

Views of History

176 Karola Gramann, Heide Schlüpmann, Views of history

HISTORY–HERSTORY

183 Hannah Arendt, Prologue
184 Gerda Lerner, Why History Matters
188 Natalie Zemon Davis, ‘Women’s History’ in Transition: The European Case
197 Barbara Duden, Preface “Against the ahistoricity of the innermost flesh”
200 Élisabeth de Fontenay, Gaspard de la nuit – Gaspard, Child of the Night

IN THE CINEMA: TELLING STORIES, DOCUMENTING EVENTS

205 Heide Schlüpmann, A “Psychological History” of Film. On Teresa de Lauretis’s “Desire in Narrative”(1982)
210 Elfi Mikesch, Sketch of a battleground at dawn
212 Natalie Zemon Davis, Film as Historical Narrative
224 Edith Becker, Michelle Citron, Julia Lesage & B. Ruby Rich, Lesbians and Film
227 Tania Modleski, A Woman’s Gotta Do ... What a Man’s Gotta Do? Cross-Dressing in the Western 232 Karen Alexander, Julie Dash: Daughters of the Dust (1991) and a black aesthetic
236 Anne Bachmann, Swedish film and Pauline Brunius in/as Thora van Deken (1920)
240 Christine Gledhill, The Child Thou Gavest Me (1921) – John Stahl’s maternal melodrama
246 Annett Busch, Entanglements. Hindle Wakes (1927)
251 Lucie Bea Dutton, “I went into the mills, into the streets of Manchester”: Maurice Elvey and Hindle Wakes (1927)

- 260 Maud Nelissen, The music for Hindle Wakes (1927)
- 264 Nia Perivolaropoulou, Beneath the Olive Tree (2015): Searching for one's personal history
- 264 Stefanie Zingl, Handmade memories. Elfriede Irrall's ums freierwerden hätte es ja geben sollen ("It should have been about becoming free") (1977–1984)
- 268 Andrea Pócsik, "I am free to choose, as a Sinteza and as a woman." Das falsche Wort (The Lie, 1987)
- 272 Mary Jirmanus Saba, Interview with Heiny Srour on The Hour of Liberation Has Arrived (1974)
- 274 Elaine Burrows, Olivia (1951)
- 282 Annette Förster, Yo, la peor de todas (1990)
- 284 Gabi Babić, Perceiving history in relation to others: Leave no Trace (2018) and Spoor (2019)
- 290 Heide Schlüpmann, The present as a moment in history

KIWI – KINO WOMEN INTERNATIONAL

- 295 Pavla Frýdlová, KIWI
- 304 Borjana Gaković, KIWI within the framework of international feminist film festivals

ELLA BERGMANN-MICHEL – FILMMAKER AND ACTIVIST

- 307 Bettina Schulte Strathaus, "Real unreality or unreal reality?" Film activist Ella Bergmann-Michel (1895–1971)